NEW PATENT SHAFT COUPLING!
W. E. COOPER
HAS PURCHASED THE RIGHT FOR THIS County of the above Patent, and will hereafter use it in the construction of all the Vehicles manufactured at his extensive
Carriage Factory,
Corner of Second and Morrison Streets.
He respectfully refers to the following
CARD.
Having examined the New Patent Shaft Coupling, invented by H. R. Hoagland, we feel pleasure in informing the public that in our opinion it is the safest and best method of connecting shafts or tongues to all vehicles that has ever been used.
It fastens without bolt or screw, and is therefore, easily and speedily separated. It rests on Gutta Percha so as to be entirely free from the rattling sound which so often disturbs restless horses. It is easily changed so that the shafts or tongue may be detached in an instant, and is convenient, safe and secure.
It is easy to change to this style of coupling any buggy or other vehicle now in use, and with small expense. We have come to the conclusion to use this new invention ourselves and recommend its use in all cases. We consider it far superior to the Brewster Patent, heretofore considered the best in use.

THE MINERAL RESOURCES OF OREGON

CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN THE VICE PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF STATISTICS AND DR. VEATCH.

OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF STATISTICS, IMMIGRATION AND LABOR EXCHANGE,
PORTLAND, OREGON, Dec. 9, 1869.

PROF. J. A. VEATCH—Dear Sir:—The principal object of our Society is to induce immigration to our State, hence the necessity to procure such data whereby we can furnish the proper information concerning what facilities Oregon offers to those seeking new homes on the Pacific.

Our agricultural resources demand attention first, so that the natural fertility of our soil and its capabilities, etc., may be known to the farmer. But I deem it also essential to obtain information concerning the untold amount of metallic wealth that lies hidden in the fastnesses of our mountains awaiting patiently for the demand of an untold number of miners to readily yield up its treasures.

Appreciating your scientific acquirements and well known abilities, occupying so honorable a position in the scientific world, I am consequently anxious to obtain from you some of that abundant supply of facts that you possess concerning the mineralogy of Oregon. Assuring you that any information you may see fit to impart will be received by our citizens with profit and satisfaction, and thus enable our Society to obtain in you an authority to substantiate what they may say concerning our mineral wealth.

Yours truly,
A. M. LORYEA,
Vice President O. I. & L. Ex.

DR. VEATCH'S REPLY.

To Dea. A. M. Loryea, Vice President O. I. & L. Ex.—DEAR SIR:—Your kind and flattering note came duly to hand and its contents have been maturely considered. If I have been tardy in answering, I must plead in excuse the pre occupation of my entire time up to the present moment.

Touching the subject of your inquiries, viz the mineral resources of Oregon, I regret to say I have but incomplete data for a satisfactory answer. During my sojourn in this State of about eighteen months, I have endeavored to collect reliable statistics on this important subject, partly by personal inspection and partly by inquiry amongst intelligent men acquainted with the various mining localities. The result is indubitable evidence that Oregon abounds in mineral wealth throughout its entire extent,—not a whit behind California in this regard. An article of mine on this subject was lately published in a pamphlet in Washington City, in which I was erroneously designated as "late State Geologist of California." I propose to draw on this same article, in part, for my present purpose.

THE COAST RANGE OF MOUNTAINS.

As we leave the southern portion of the State and travel northerly, many groups of mines are encountered. The Bohemia mines, situated in the Umpqua mountains, a cross range which connects the Cascade and Coast ranges, is a large group of very large veins. In June last I visited this locality and examined carefully a few of the veins. Some of these are of great promise, so far as the limited excavations served to discover their true character. I was told of other vein groups in the same range.

Near Canyonville is a district extensively permeated with gold bearing veins. Some of these have been sufficiently developed to warrant fair expectations of their future. The facilities of access and the fertility of the country immediately adjacent, render this locality especially desirable for mining purposes. Valuable copper ore has been found in the same vicinity.

Immense quantities of gold bearing iron pyrites are found not far from Roseburg. They yield from $20 to $35 per ton and are destined ultimately to be a source of boundless wealth.

At Oakland, a few miles north of Roseburg, a heavy quarry of limestone occurs. All the above are very near the route of the Oregon Central Railroad.

A little further north, not far from Eugene City, another extensive group of gold producing veins occurs, with evidence of richness. This locality is favored with unlimited water power, most favorably situated, as regards the larger veins of the group. Good roads exist to within a short distance. These exceedingly favorable conditions, backed by an abundance of good lumber, render this locality very attractive and desirable for extensive mining purposes. Many thousand men could find profitable employment in each of the above localities, who, drawing their supplies from the adjacent valleys, would create an occupation for further thousands in the mechanic arts but more especially in agriculture—thus advancing the value of lands, and in proportion to the increase demand for their production.

THE SANTIAM MINING EXPERIMENTS.

The Santiam mines are extensive and probably rich. Unfortunately a few rich "pockets" were first discovered, and the usual result followed. Expensive tunnels were executed to strike imaginary lodes, and every cleavage fissure of the bed rock was magnified into a "well defined vein," and thus money, energy, and time were expended in search of impossible results. The locality is doubtless rich in metals and only requires the right combination of money and knowledge to demonstrate the fact. Lead and zinc abound in the neighborhood, probably the most extensive developments of the kind on the Pacific coast. This fact I have from personal examination.

From points still further north rich ores have been placed in my hands for assay, the results being of the most encouraging character.

IRON.

The iron ores of great purity found on the immediate banks of the Willamet, as well as at various other points in the great valley, amidst the grand Oregon forests, form one of the most striking features of the mineral wealth of the State. These great iron beds are practically inexhaustible in quantity.

COAL.

Coal is also found in considerable quantities at various places in the valley. Limestone abounds a few miles away from Oregon City. Fire clay, potters' clay and other economic minerals, have also been brought to light. Good marble of rare beauty is found in Jackson county.

MINERAL WATERS.

Mineral springs abound, rich in salt and borate of soda, (borax), usually accompanied with iodine. Carbonated waters, rich in all the ingredients sought for in medicinal springs, are not unusual. One of these, the Wilhoit Springs, I have found to approach the Saratoga Congress water very nearly in composition.

THE MINES OF EASTERN OREGON.

The great fountain of metallic wealth is, however, to be found east of the Cascades. Many entire mountains are composed of a perfect network of metalliferous veins. In point of numbers they are not excelled by an equal area, perhaps in any other portion of the world. A very large proportion of these seem to be rich, from tests made, mostly from the surface, as but few of them have been penetrated by tunnels. The rich placers formerly existing in the vicinity are not yet entirely exhausted. Are evidences of the value of the adjacent lodes. The chief metal is gold, but silver, lead, copper, zinc, antimony and mercury are all abundant.

Want of capital, difficulty of access for heavy machinery, remoteness from the great thoroughfare of travel, and more than all, the total absence of all reliable information that should have been diffused amongst the mining population of other countries, have served to keep down the prominence so justly due this great metallic field. The contemplated Northern railroad is destined to awaken this slumbering interest, as the Oregon Central road is quickening into vitality, that of the Cascades and Coast ranges.

GENERAL REFLECTIONS.

The development of these resources will call to Oregon a host of miners and mechanics, with the unfailing accompaniment of merchants and traders—all consumers of the products of the soil, demanding food, raiment, tools and machinery, transportation by land and water—steam, stages, expresses and telegraphs.

Let the facts of Oregon's metallic resources be placed in a reliable shape before the European mining population, now turning their eyes toward the Pacific, and along with this her agricultural capabilities, and there is no reason why we cannot share the immigration with California, at present engrossing it all.

With the two great pass-ways to and from Oregon—the contemplated northern road and the present rapidly progressing Oregon Central Railroad—the one winding its way amongst auriferous mountains, and the other gliding through the fair fields of the Willamette Valley, overlooked on either side by metal bearing mountain ranges, what is to hinder Oregon from becoming a great commercial center and the thoroughfare for Asiatic trade?

The important object of your Association, that of inducing emigration to this State, is of a noble and more exalted nature than the mere addition to the number of our population, however valuable that may be to its social and commercial bearings. A broad humanity extends to all civilized nations, and in offering a home to the homeless, industrious millions of other lands, we are blessed in giving and receiving.

To within a very recent period Oregon has been an unknown realm, and even now only a gleam of information is breaking on the outside world. The meteoric splendor of the California gold fields has long dazzled all eyes turned toward the Pacific, and concentrated attention upon the point whence issued the great metallic flood. We all know the result—a tidal wave of emigration never ebbing. When the Pacific coast has been named, California was understood, and the Golden Gate was California. With a far seeing policy those shrewd men who directed the early political growth of the State and shaped its destiny, adopted at the outset the plain, common sense, but new mode of keeping held up to the world's view the boundless mineral resources of the land. The thousands of dollars spent on geological surveys were returned to the State by tens of thousands, the result of an increased wealth by a constantly growing population.

The influence extended to the confines of European and Asiatic civilization, culminating in one of the grandest wonders of creative human energy, the transcontinental railway. The germ was planted when the first speck of yellow metal was picked up at Sutter's mill race.

With the railway came new conditions and a new class of men. As a mighty torrent it rushed against some strong barrier is turned to one side in its course, so were the new men, when checked by the Pacific, turned roving its shores, and thus they discovered Oregon. It is needless to say they found a land rich in every capability desirable for a great population, with its navigable rivers, its broad valleys, large enough for kingdoms, its noble forests, its living streams offering exhaustless power for machinery and fountains for irrigation, its strikingly equable climate and a soil, fertile, almost beyond belief.

These are the points your Association is placing before the world in their true light. It may have been a misfortune to the country that it had not been done sooner. It is now, however, done, and the world now looks to the Oregon Immigration and Labor Exchange for the fitting up of the outlines of the great picture.

Truly and respectfully yours,
JOHN A. VEATCH,
Chemist and Mineralogist.

THE FEMALE SEDUCER.—Through so many ages man has been the acknowledged seducer of woman, the fact has been overlooked and forgiven, that woman is oftener the seducer of man. I know such a woman—a woman of fashion, allied to a man high in position. She is a woman of large personal and mental magnetism. For what good purpose does she use it? She uses it to "entrant" men from their allegiance to duty, honor, and a pure love! She boasted in a drawing room that "she never saw a married man whose love she could not win away from his wife, if she chose." "My dear husband," said a fond little woman, "you could not nobody could, take him from me." "The little simpleton!" declared the Lamia, afterward "in less than six months she came in, crying, begging me to give her husband back to her, that he neglected her, that he upbraided her constantly because she was not more like me. I don't want your husband, I said, I only wanted to show you that I could do what I pleased, and to teach you not to trust in any man's love. There is many a Lamia. She stands the central figure of many a social circle. In palace structure to a luxurious home, surrounded by all the soothing accessories of wealth and cultivation, herself fascinating, if not beautiful, what wonder that she draws within her charmed sphere the many homeless, friendless, dissatisfied men of her acquaintance. The power of a man thus poised and sure ended, cannot be estimated. N. Y. Independent.

A lecturer at Patterson, N. J., asked his audience, in emphatical tones, "What did Moses say?" "Skoo fly" was the answer from a dozen boys in the gallery.

Stanton.

From Gen. N. P. Banks, Dec. 31.

HIS PRIVATE MEANS

Mr. Stanton was credited to Pennsylvania on the record of Cabinet appointments by reason of his having for a time a law office at Pittsburg, but he was regarded Steubenville, Ohio—where he was born in 1815—as his home. For many years however, he has resided in this city. Before entering the Cabinet he had amassed considerable means in the practice of his profession, in which he stood among the foremost lawyers at the bar of the Supreme Court of the United States. But during his labors in the War Office he materially impaired his private means, and he is understood among his most intimate friends with having each year expended an amount equal to his salary in charities and in aid of the patriotic purposes which so thoroughly enlisted his whole time and all his vital powers. Therefore, for the past eight years his accumulations have been little or nothing, and the public will regret to learn that beyond the family residence on K street, opposite Franklin Square, Mr. Stanton died comparatively poor. What a crushing rebuke to the false partisan and relentless imputations on his official career, from those men and presses whose base motives he discovered; whose evil intentions he thwarted, and whose disloyal deeds he so promptly punished.

THE FEELING IN THE COMMUNITY.

The effect of this sudden death of a man so well known and so highly esteemed has been and is deeply in the extreme. The community has not been more shocked since the assassination of President Lincoln, whose single-hearted purposes always found such a powerful relief—not in the sturdy determination and great executive capacity of his untiring Minister of War. Of Course

NO Democrats are more ardently devoted to democracy to be particularly active in championing the cause of popular education. In certain cases where the rate is considered the sums of money to be handled a political advantage to be gained we have never known an exception to this. Democrats have been in control in many parts of the country, and have had the management of school affairs. Somehow it has been quite general to see even the slightest political faith observing the fundamentals and clerkships of school districts the Democrats all wing the elections to pay for their. We have heard an abundance of clamor against what Democrats are pleased to call partisan education, and it would seem that as a rule they vastly prefer to be grabblers at than managers of, our schools. We challenge the recollection of everybody cognizant of the facts, upon the assertion that three fourths of all the notices, direct or indirect, of our schools and educational organizations by Democratic newspapers for the last ten years, have been covert, sneering thugs at, or open attacks upon, them.

The facts is, our popular school systems are not promoters of Democratic party strength. Not because they are prostituted to the propagation of political ideas of any sort, but because Democracy in a partisan sense thrives best where ignorance is the most gross. We are not, therefore, at all surprised to hear the Marion County Teachers' Association—one of the most successful practical and liberal organizations of the kind in the State—denounced by a prominent Democratic organ as a first class political bulk and to hear it warn people against encouraging such a "set of men" as compose the Association. The ostensible offense of the Association is that, in communicating an account of its late proceedings, for publication, the writer made an allusion to the "world-renowned system of common schools of New England, and the expression of gratification at the fact that the Western States are following "closely in her wake" and that the Southern States are "building upon the shattered ruins of long cherished ignorance a new status of popular intelligence." This is the Association's offending—nothing more. And for this, the "document"—a general account of the late meeting—is called a "sweet-scented puritanical document," containing "specimens of Yankee Pharisaism."

We are not surprised, nor do we imagine that any of the members of the Association will be; though this is, perhaps, the first intimation any of them have had that anything of a political nature had been or could be connected with their proceedings. It is doubtful if one of them gave a thought to any influence their organization might wield other than for the improvement of the common schools of the county. It is to be hoped, however, that the Association will not, because of this joining of issue with it by a Democratic newspaper, at the opening of the political campaign, deem it necessary to disband, or to discontinue its efforts to improve the schools of that part of the State, or to cease to rejoice at the prospective spread of intelligence.

Y is Off.

The telegraph brings the intelligence that the recreant Flanders has lost his gubernatorial head. The funeral of the bolting faction of Washington Territory has been ordered. The event was not unexpected nor will the announcement be distasteful to any Republican who really desires the harmony and success of his party in that Territory. There are other heads to come off, and as they fall in the basket, the Republican masses will say amen.

Ashley of Montana lost his official head because he abused the trust reposed in him and went in with the corrupt Democratic rings of Montana. Flanders loses his for a similar reason. If he did not openly join the Democratic party, he pursued a more effectual course to prostrate the Republican strength of the Territory and to render Democratic success more certain than would his open affiliation with that party. Dennison, Ritz, Wilson and perhaps others of the conspiring faction, will, no doubt, soon follow Flanders to retirement, and with him will have opportunity to reflect at leisure upon treachery and apostacy as the means of political advancement.

President Grant's policy of at once dispensing with the services of officials tried and found wanting, is an excellent one, not only because it will secure the services of a more competent and trusty class of officials but because it will have a tendency to correct a sort of demoralized and debauched official morality which came to prevail under Andrew Johnson's administration, and as a sort of overshoot of his own political and official debauchery.

Editorial Notes

Horace Greeley proposes writing a series of essays, to be entitled, "What I know of farming," which will be published in the New York Weekly Tribune. The series will be a short one if it end at the end of what Horace knows of farming.

The Gentile editor who was recently thrashed by a gang of Mormon saints is about to take his revenge by writing a book about them. If he could only manage to make the Mormons read it, his wounds of flesh and bones and honor would be, probably, more than avenged.

The National Republican of Dec 25th states that the President had determined to appoint Gen. E. S. Solomon of Chicago Governor of Washington Territory. The name was telegraphed yesterday. "E. D. Salmon." The person is undoubtedly the same, and we print it as we find it in the Republican. Gen Solomon is a German Republican who served with distinction in the Union army during the late rebellion.

It seems that the telegraphers' "strike," about which the telegraph makes such frequent mention, grew out of no more important circumstance than the discharge at San Francisco of two operators because they would not stand a reduction of wages from $120 to $115 per month. The news being sent east, the operators there refused to work unless the regular wages were paid to their San Francisco brethren and the strike spread like the lightning the operators handle so deftly, until it assumed almost a national character.

In regard to hard times and commercial failures in the Eastern States, we are inclined to believe that the financial pressure is more comparative than real. Money is not scarce nor trade so crushing as for a few years past, but it must be remembered that during those years the people have been on the top of a high wave of prosperity. A commercial collapse of the Boston Board of Trade is that the number of failures for the last two months have actually been less than for the same time last year and the business that have gone under lately have mostly been insignificant and void of commercial importance.

The Congressional news is interesting. There seems to be a lively effort being made on the part of the friends of Virginia admission to save that State from the fate of Georgia and it is rather probable the movement will be successful notwithstanding the persistent opposition of Senator Sumner and a few other Senators. The advocates of immediate admission include a number of the most influential Republican Senators and members of the House. It would seem that after the generous statement of the situation by Gov Wells, supported by the testimony of numerous witnesses who are entitled to credence there should be little hesitation in admitting Virginia's Senators and Representatives to their seats. It is hardly a good reason for keeping Virginia out in the cold, that Georgia or Tennessee has acted badly, though it is undoubtedly true that the objections of some of the members of Congress have no better foundation.

To appreciate the necessity of applying a fresh dose of reconstruction to Georgia, as Congress has done, it is only necessary to state how the unregenerate Democracy obtained control of the Legislature. When the Georgia hall was under discussion in the House of Representatives, Gen Butler made a statement to the effect that several of the negro and white Republican members had been killed or driven out of the State. We find ample proof of this in eastern exchanges and correspondence from Georgia. The real state of facts seems to be that twenty five or thirty persons who were ineligible to seats under the 14th amendment, did actually assume to take seats and vote out the negro members since when two Republican members have been killed and fifteen others have been driven out of the State by Ku Klux threats of assassination. As Gen Butler said, this is a new and novel method of obtaining a Democratic majority, and shows a state of things which cries out for correction.

OREGON

The people of the Dalles have resolved to build a new and commodious school house.

James Crossen has been appointed Marshal of Dalles City, vice Peter Ruffner, resigned.

A five year old boy of Mr. S. Farrens, of Howell Prairie, had his skull frightfully crushed by a kick from a horse, a few days since.

We learn from the Gazette that Mr. Roland Chambers, of King's Valley, Benton county, died instantly last Thursday, while standing in the road talking with another person.

Mr. E. A. Bensell, of the Newport (Yaquina) Transportation Co., has gone to San Francisco to charter a vessel to run in the company's trade till next fall when they expect to have one of their own ready for service.

We learn from Polk county that Col Nathaniel Ford, who was among the early settlers of Oregon, died at his home on Sunday. Some years ago, he was prominent in this State as a Democratic politician.

Our readers will remember the mysterious disappearance of Col Noyes, from Albany a couple of years since. The Mountaineer now says that he and his wife, who left there some time afterward, are living at Omaha, and doing well.

The Mountaineer says: "The settlers at Spanish Hollow in this [Wasco] county, make great complaint about mail facilities. Although on the mail route to Umatilla, the stage passing through every day, they have no post office established, and all newspapers, etc., for that locality, must be brought to the Dalles or some other place or taken to the individuals through the courtesy of the stage driver. A petition has been sent to the Postmaster General, signed by a number of citizens of that vicinity, asking to have a post office established."

The Statesman of Tuesday says: "Mr. John Measham and Mr William McKay, who accompanied the late expedition to the Indian country as surgeon, returned by the boat from above yesterday, having left Superintendent Measham at Eugene. Dr McKay reports that the expedition accomplished more than he expected. All the Modocs are in, and all the Indians from Goose Lake to Camp Warner are in making over seven hundred who have lately removed to the Klamath Reservation. Snakes and Modocs. These Indians are comfortably provided for in log buildings and huts, they are furnished with abundance of provisions and supplied with clothing and blankets for the winter. The flannels and blankets were manufactured at the Ashland Mills and are of excellent quality. Ocheo, the great fighting chief, is so well pleased with his quarters that he has asked leave to bring more Indians to also live on the reservation, and so with other chiefs, and it is probable that many more will come in before spring. The Snakes at Camp Harney have none of them come in. These refractory Indians number 400, and are influenced by Weahwa, and so was old chief Winnemucca, so well known at Washoe."

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS

The battle field of Chancellorsville has been bought by a Baltimore gentleman for $6 200.

The Calvert (Texas) Enterprise says that place has grown from a town of fifty houses to one of a thousand in the past six months.

The bones of a mastodon were found recently in Elizabeth, Jo Daviess county, ninety feet below the surface, by miners. Similar discoveries have also been made in other mines in that neighborhood.

Duluth, Minn., calls itself Zenith City, and its local post says it proudly stands by the rock-bound inland ocean, while out her feet the mighty father of the lakes extends her waters broad and deep as if inviting commerce from the Southern border.

Governor Fairchild and other members of the State Visiting Committee last week visited the Wisconsin Reform School and it course the Governor must make a speech. During the remarks he asked the boys if they could tell what the Committee came for. Prompt was the response from one of them: "Yes Sir: to be reformed."

In the early days of Western emigration an intelligent Irishman known as Dugan settled on the Kentucky side of the Ohio river, where he built a little dock and supplied steamboats with wood. The place was called Pat Dugan's Landing. It was soon shortened into "Pat Dugan's," then into Padoodgans, and finally to the euphonious name which now appears on all the maps. Paducah.

It is stated that the long visit of Brigham Young, Jr. at the East is owing to the unwilling ness of his favorite wife to return to Utah. She is a Philadelphia lady by birth, and does not like polygamy as well as she thought she should. Her father, who is a railroad officer, has been offered a lucrative position in Brigham's road in order to get the whole family to Utah, but he does not get accepted, and Brigham will remain with his wife at her father's leaving his other helpments out in the cold.

EASTERN DATES TO JANUARY 10

Washington News

WASHINGTON, Jan 10—Gen Sherman to-day ordered a general review to-day, announced the death of Gen Meade, "a man whom he says, a better soldier, or braver never lived."

Sumner has prepared an elaborate financial bill, for refunding the national debt at a lower rate of interest; giving additional banking privileges to the south and west and for resumption of specie payments. Some real financial men speak highly of the bill and think it will meet the approval of the majority of the Senate.

The treaty looking to the acquisition of St Domingo is sharply criticised by both Senate and House.

Morton has prepared a bill prohibiting the building, arming or fitting out of foreign vessels in this country intended to apply particularly to Spain.

The Republican conference on the Ways and Means Committee on the subject of the tariff recommended the following, as the first half measures to be passed by the Congress which shall next convene: Repeal of the duties on tea and coffee; the reduction of the duties on iron, and the reduction of the duties on Tennessee, which should touch the Senate question. If the bill was allowed to go over until next week, he would not oppose reconsideration. Howard opposed the admission of Virginia and said he could not overlook the fact that the legislature was overwhelmingly rebel. Edmunds wanted the bill postponed till he could investigate the condition of affairs in Virginia. Morton took the ground that the spirit of the entire reconstruction act gives all rebels the right to take part in the reorganization of a State, except such as were embraced in the third clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. Participation in the rebellion was not cause of ineligibility. He favored the admission of the State. Drake moved an amendment providing that any future reconsideration by a State of its ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment should operate to exclude it from representation. The debate continued, without reaching a vote, until the Senate went into executive session and soon after adjourned.

Proceedings in the House.

In the House a large number of bills were introduced, the most important of which was a bill apportioning Representatives to Congress, by Paine.

Section one provides that after March 1, 1871 the House of Representatives shall consist of three hundred members. If any new States be admitted after the next census, their Representatives shall be additional to the three hundred. If any State be reduced in numbers by the apportionment, such reduction shall not take effect in the forty second Congress, but its Representatives that come to Congress in excess of the number fixed by the apportionment shall be additional to the three hundred. If the Representatives from any State shall be increased by the apportionment such additional Representatives shall be chosen by a vote at large.

Section two requires that a preliminary report be furnished to the secretary of the Interior before August 15, 1870 showing the whole number of persons in each State or Territory and the whole number of voters.

Section three provides that the Secretary of the Interior shall ascertain from this report the basis of representation in Congress.

Section four requires the Secretary of the Interior to include the basis of representation in each of the States of Mississippi, Virginia, Texas and Georgia in the aggregate basis of the United States, but he shall not transmit a statement of his proceedings to their Governors until the States respectively are admitted to representation in both houses of Congress. The other sections provide details for carrying out the bill.

Meagher offered a resolution directing all the Cabinet officers to report the number of carriages, horses and harness paid for by Government and used for the pleasure or convenience of the heads of Departments and their families, and by what authority such Government property has been so appropriated. The House refused to second the previous question and the resolution went over.

Bingham introduced a joint resolution declaring Virginia entitled to a representation in Congress and moved the previous question on the passage. The main question was ordered, 78 to 58. Benjamin moved to reconsider the vote ordering the previous question. The vote resulted 76 to 75 the speaker casting a vote in the negative. The House refused to reconsider. Wotte moved to adjourn, and called for the ayes and noes. Randall made a remark about South Carolina filibustering to exclude Virginia. Paine called the attention of the Speaker to the fact that the vote on Benjamin's motion was not correctly recorded. After some colloquy the vote was corrected. A motion to reconsider the vote ordering the previous question prevailed. The House then refused to second the previous question and the resolution went over.

The Committees reported on pension and military academy appropriation bills. The former appropriates a sum $25 000 000 and the latter $1 000 000, and they were made the special order for Wednesday and Thursday next.

Several petitions on various subjects were presented and the House adjourned.

LUMBER.—It is a low estimate to say that the sawmills in this city, during the year 1869, have cut at least 5,000,000 feet of lumber. The most of this, in fact, very nearly all of it, has been used in the various improvements in the city and affords an indication of her progress which is not at all discouraging to those who believe in the permanent advancement and prosperity of Portland. In addition to this amount of lumber, no inconsiderable quantity has been brought from the mills adjacent from those down the Columbia, and from California. The last mentioned portion, is the red wood, used for the finer finishing, etc. During the approaching season, our city will witness a more vigorous prosecution of the various improvements tending to a rapid growth than ever before. This belief is founded on the preparations to build and improve which are being made, even at this early date in the season.

MUSIC AT THE PLAZA.—The public concert at the Plaza to day by the Twenty Third Infantry Band, will consist of the following excellent program. Performance to begin at 2 30 P M:

1. Quickstep, 14th Regt N G S N Y.
2. Gloe, "Now, at Moonlight's Fairy Hour."
3. Caretina from Roberto Devereux.—Donizetti.
4. Quadrille, from the Opera Maritana.—Wallace.
5. Introductory to Lucretia Borgia, Bella Ve[illegible]—Donizetti.
6. Romance from the Grand Duchess, "Say to [illegible]—Offenbach.
7. The Anvil Polka.
8. Greetings to My Love Galop.

THEY SAW IT.—The fact has been demonstrated time in the past week week in Portland that [illegible]ersons, as much despised as he is, sometimes be of much advantage. The late fire at the corner of First and Washington streets was first discovered by a Chinaman, who gave the alarm and attracted the attention of a policeman to the incipient flames. A few nights ago a barrel factory at the lower end of town caught on over the boiler in the dry house and but for timely discovery by one of the Chinese living in that part of the city, the flames would likely have caused much damage.

ODD FELLOWS CITY.—On Tuesday the 6th inst. at Odd Fellows Hall in Oregon City, the members of Oregon Lodge No. 3, I O O F, and their lady friends, met as per appointment, for the purpose of witnessing the installing of the newly elected officers for the term ending July 1st, 1870, by R. M. Bacon, Grand Master, by special request proceeded to install the officers as follows: D. McCown, N. G; E. B. Fellows, V. G.; J. Fraser, R. S; D. C. Ireland, P. S.; L. Diller, Treasurer; J. W. Ryan, W; N. W. Randall, O. G. W. J. Caldwell, I. G.

THAT SO?—The following dispatch was sent to Salem on last Thursday, the 6th inst., and read in the Alta of San Francisco, on the 7th: "Courtney Meek, who murdered Jake [illegible] at Hillsboro, a short time since, is known to have crossed the river at this place yesterday. There is a reward of $700 offered for his arrest, and the officers are close after him." We trust for the sake of justice that this may be so, but we doubt it and no such report before receiving our Portland exchanges by the steamer last night.

U. S. COURT, DEADY, J.—The United States District Court, yesterday was principally occupied in the argument of the case of Glenira Holmes et al. vs. Holmes et al, Messrs. Trimble and Logan for Plaintiff and Page & Thayer and Strong for Defendants. The Court adjourned until 10 o'clock A. M. today, when the argument of the same case will be resumed. The U. S. District Court stands adjourned until Monday the 17th inst.

THE FLAG heretofore used on the staff at the Court House, is in a very dilapidated condition and does not reflect much credit upon those charged with such a ragged affair to wave over the public building. At a distance, one could hardly tell whether it was the cast off striped apparel of "poor Lo" or the greatly honored "flag of the free." It is draggled, torn and [illegible] certainly presents none of those hues which the poet says "are born in Heaven."

VANDALISM.—Some persons, perhaps thoughtless boys, have been wickedly breaking the glass in the front window basement of the Methodist Church on Taylor street. This piece of lawless work has been going on for some time, and unless it is stopped, the police will be put upon the track of the vicious rascals who are perpetrating such acts of vandalism.

SAFE OF THE WING.—Some of the parties [illegible] by the late fire in this city would hardly know themselves by the reports of the fire published in the California papers. For instance, the Bulletin's dispatch says the "grand [illegible] L. Friedlaenh" suffered the heaviest loss, and "Dukes," a fur dealer, also suffered severely, etc.

LOSSES.—The stock of groceries belonging to [illegible] Friedenrich and badly damaged by the late fire, have been invoiced by three gentlemen appointed for that purpose. We hear that they as the probable value of the stock before it was damaged at $1,720. The damaged goods will be sold at auction to-day.

TRIAL TRIP.—The trial trip of the Mary Bell, which left before last, proved that she is well constructed as to hull and machinery, and can be set down as a success in the steamboat line. A number of invited guests were on board, and all seemed to think she did well for a beginner.

FESTIVAL.—The public will bear in mind the festival to be given this evening by the ladies in connection with the Presbyterian Church at the corner of Washington and Third street. A general invitation is extended and a very pleasant time is insured to all who attend.

NEW QUARTERS.—Mr L. Ash has removed to the newly fitted brick store No 97, First street where he will be found ready to accommodate his friends with any of the latest styles of silks, [illegible]use, laces, etc. He has a very fine stock of splendid goods.

STREET IMPROVEMENTS.—The Auditor and Clerk [illegible] the usual notice that the Common Council [illegible] to improve Salmon street from First to Twelfth, and Twelfth street from B to Jefferson by grading, laying sids and crosswalk and plank roadway.

APPOINTED.—We find in the Corvallis Gazette the Rev. Wmilliam Roberts and O S Sprenher of this city, mentioned as effective workers in the temperance cause. The former has been appointed and commissioned as State Deputy G W C T.

R R MEETING.—We heard yesterday that a meeting in the interest of the West side Railroad was to be held at the Bank of Messrs Ladd & Tilton last evening. We failed to learn what progress was taken if any.

BY PONY.—The steamship Ajax arrived last evening at eight o'clock from San Francisco. She passed the Montana on Monday bound south. No Marine Intelligence for memoranda and pas[illegible] list.

"THE CALL."—The daily Evening Call made its first appearance yesterday afternoon.

FUNERAL PROCESSION.—The funeral procession of the late Mrs S Arden was attended by a large number of people. The procession was accompanied to the cemetery, south of the city by a long procession of carriages.

CLEARED.—From the Alta of the 8th inst we learn that the bark Helen M Gray, Capt Widdonson, cleared for the port of Astoria on Friday last. She probably sailed from San Francisco on Saturday.

DESERTED.—The wharves at the lower end of the city, yesterday presented a very deserted appearance, not a single vessel being there. This is quite a contrast to the busy activity to be seen last week.

REMOVED.—Dr Watkins has removed his office to Odd Fellows Temple, corner of Third and Alder streets where he is needing his services will find him ready to respond to their calls.

RECEIPTS.—The boats from Oregon City yesterday brought to this place over 4,000 quarter sacks of flour and 1,500 bushels of wheat, besides a large quantity of other produce.

FAVORS.—We owe the purser of the Ajax and Wells, Fargo & Co one for favors shown in the way of late papers from San Francisco, etc.

FINED.—Geo Maxwell was up before the Recorder yesterday for assault upon a man in a beer cellar on Sunday night.

FALSE ALARM.—The various fire bells of the city rung out an alarm which proved to be false, at 8 o'clock last evening.

ST. HELENS HALL.—Studies will be resumed at this school this morning at the usual hour.

PERSONAL AND POLITICAL.

For the Supreme Court vacancy, a popular candidate among Southern men is Durant, of Tennessee, but the President does not talk favorably.

The Wyoming Legislature passed a bill licensing gambling houses. The Governor vetoed it, and it was again passed by a two third vote and became a law.

George Francis Train swears in his suit against Peter Cooper for refusing him the use of Cooper's Institute to lecture in, that his income from lecturing is $50 000 a year and upward.

The Galveston (Texas) News is indignant because the President used the term "rebellion" in his message, and asks if civil war, or "the late hostilities," would not have done as well.

Among the applicants for positions in the New York Custom House last week was Daniel Pratt, "the great American traveler and future President of the United States." He was not appointed.

Mrs Lucia C. Calhoun, correspondent of the New York Tribune, was married on Wednesday last to Mr. Cornelius Rankle, a lawyer of that city, the legal adviser and one of the stockholders of that journal.

Ignatius Donnelly, in a late letter, alludes to those Republicans "who would have us believe that our great organization is like the unfortunate lunatic, who fancied he was made of glass and was afraid to move, lest he might break something."

The Washington Star boasts that District Judge Trigg of Tennessee is in a fair way to be impeached. It intimates that the Judge's course in all cases in which the Government has been interested has been so singular as to attract the attention of Congress.

A Boston gentleman, who had long enjoyed the acquaintance of the late Edwin M Stanton, informs the Boston Journal that it was Mr Stanton's ambition from a boy to occupy a seat on the bench of the Supreme Court. Mr Stanton's father died of the same disease that caused the death of the late Secretary of War.

A Mississippi letter states that the vote cast in that State last year was 120,000, with a majority against the Republicans of over 7,000, this year it has been 114,784, with a majority for Alcorn over Dent of nearly 40,000, which exceeds Dent's vote by 486 votes. The Republicans have four fifths in the Lower House, and nearly the same in the Senate.

President Grant, it is said, declared Thursday morning that Mr. Hoar would remain in his cabinet, if it lay in his power to persuade him to remain. The President unquestionably is not pleased with the Senate's action but he freely concedes that it has only exercised its right. Mr. Hoar's continuance in the cabinet rests entirely with himself.

The Richmond State Journal, which, previous to the election in Virginia, supported Gov. Wells, and, in fact, up to the time of the last Republican State Convention, advocated extremely radical measures, is now zealously supporting a more liberal policy, seeking to aid in building up a strong and liberal Republican party in the Legislature and in the State.

The New York Tribune don't like the proposition to create two new Lieutenant Generals, in order to honor Meade and Thomas. "It is better," it says, "for George H. Thomas that in time to come people should ask why he was not Lieutenant-General, than that they should point to his name bearing that title on some dusty army register, of the year 1870."

Virginia, in the view of the Richmond Whig, is as much indebted to the unwise conduct pursued in Georgia and the wild freaks of the Tennessee Legislature for the hitch in her admission as to the cold malignity of some of the political wire-workers and managers at Washington. "Our Georgia and Tennessee friends," it says, "instead of benefiting themselves, have seriously hurt us."

The President remarked recently, that he desired the passage of a law enforcing the Fourteenth Amendment, and affixing a penalty for all violations of the Third Article of the Amendment. In answer to a remark that the amendment could not be enforced without any legislation and officials displaced who could not take the test oath, the President replied that they might be displaced, but would be re elected as often, and by this means entirely stop the machinery of local government, but if a penalty should attach to a violation, men would not seek places which would bring them trouble.

AN ARTICLE OF TRUE MERIT.—"Brown's Bronchial Troches" are the most popular article in this country or Europe for Throat Diseases and Coughs and this popularity is based upon real merit, which cannot be said of many other preparations in the market which are really but weak imitations of the genuine Troches.

ADVICE IF YOU WISH TO BUY A GOOD SUIT OF CLOTHING, TAKE A FRIEND AND CALL AND BUY THE MAN ACROSS, ODD FELLOW'S TEMPLE, FIRST STREET, Portland.

ST HELEN'S HALL.—VACATION EXTENDED.—On account of unexpected delay in removing and enlarging the school building of St Helen's Hall the Christmas vacation will be extended to Wednesday morning January 12th. There will be no service in St Stephen's Church until Sunday the 16th.

Home Questions for the Sickly and Debilitated.

Is it worth while to endure penal torture after every meal, when indigestion can be immediately relieved and permanently cured by so agreeable a remedy as HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS?

Does it pay to be compelled by debility and languor to abandon active business when brain, nerve and muscle can be braced up, and the whole system restored to a healthy condition, by a course of HOSTETTER'S BITTERS?

Why approach the dinner table daily with a positive disgust for all that is savory and delicious when a vigorous appetite for even the plainest fare is created by the use of HOSTETTER'S BITTERS?

Is it wise to live in this bright world as if it were a dungeon gloomy, discontented and miserable, when the worst case of hypochondria can be cured in a week by such a pleasant and wholesome exhilarant as HOSTETTER'S BITTERS?

Can it be possible that any person of bilious habit will run the risk of remittent fever or bilious colic, when he can tone and regulate the great secretive organ with HOSTETTER'S BITTERS?

Is it not a species of moral insanity for any miner or planter in the interior, or any travel rer or sojourner on the placers to be with out the first known antidote to the effects of poisonous air and impure water, HOSTETTER'S BITTERS?

Considering the harassing and depressing nature of the functional derangements to which woman is subject is it not astonishing that any invalid of the feebler sex should hesitate to seek the certain relief afforded in such cases, by the genial operation of HOSTETTER'S BITTERS?

These are questions of deeper interest than any of the political dogmas of the day and those whom they concern are invited to give them something more than a passing thought.

A Good Story Well Told.

[Correspondence of the Cincinnati Commercial.]

The following story is told by Hyatt Smith:

We stopped at Syracuse (New York) for dinner. You remember the railroad depot, centrally situated, with its eastern and western entrances exactly alike—as much so as the two ends of a car. After we had dined, the depot master informed me that we had seventeen minutes to spare before the departure of the Eastern train. This, thought I, will give me an opportunity to see the city and a glorious chance for a smoke. I prevailed a clergyman could be tempted into such a piece of wasteful and worldly amusement. I sauntered forth, and, after an absence of exactly thirteen minutes, having enjoyed a delightful and soothing stroll, I was leisurely returning, watch in hand, when, to my sudden astonishment, I beheld a train slowly gliding out at the other end of the depot, and increasing its speed at every puff of its gigantic locomotive.

Here indeed was a "call" that admitted of neither correspondence nor delay—there was no time for "taking into consideration." So, without conferring with flesh or blood, I put off like a sky-rocket with a double fuse. For a moment I thought I had it all my own way. I thought I was gaining ground, although I knew I was losing wind. I was encouraged in the race by sundry helpful fellows who kept crying out as I passed, "Vic it gathers!" "plucky boy!" "he ain't left, O no!" and other well meaning and benignant exhortations. Though they intended, perhaps, helping me over the course, I found that the more they shouted the less inclined I was to run, and the more decidedly did the locomotive make terrible headway against me. To give up the chase; to submit to the chagrin of being left; to lose my party and my baggage; to meet with disappointment and not to meet with friends; all this was bad enough; but the thought of encountering, all the way back to the depot, that line of interested individuals who with their cheering exclamations had so fleetingly encouraged me on my outward journey, this was the bitterest pill in this unexpected dose.

But it must be done; so tapering off gradually I gave up the contest and turned back to meet my fate, and—if I could find him—the depot master, whose blundering statements were the cause of all my trouble. Without search that individual advanced to greet me with the bland recognition of a fact that no one could well deny, "Well, you got left, did you?" I replied only with the resentment of a "silencing eye." If I looked as I tried to look, my photograph taken at that instant would hardly be chosen to grace an album gallery of "eminent divines." Several bystanders seeking information, asked, with a show of confidential interest in my case, on what wise the thing had happened? and others wishing "to point a moral, advised me to be on hand a little earlier next time." With returning breath relief and words came together, and I squarely charged the railroad official with all the blame. I spoke of his incompetency, in no measured terms, recalling how that after I had placed my party in the car he had assured me that there were full seventeen minutes to spare before the train went out; "while here," said I, with a triumphant exhibition of my watch, "the seventeen minutes are even now barely up, and yet the train is gone, and out of sight."

After no little hot shot cast back and forth, with the usual vituperations and final peroration of "you did and you didn't," "you're another," etc., I asked him whether I would be risking another chance of being left if I depended upon him to give me the exact hour of the departure of the next Eastern train. "Eastern!" he hinted he. "Yes, Eastern!" I replied, with a decidedly upward and sarcastic inflection. "Why," quoth he, "I'll take the train you've just been chasing with such good luck wasn't an Eastern train, but the Western express." With much and interesting confusion and recklessness I answered out, "Then where in Joppa is the Eastern train?" "Why, there it is," replied he, "just getting under way at the other end of the depot, log it, or you'll lose that." If ever I did make Dexter time I made it then. I passed right through that depot like the wind. I felt as if I was all legs. One glance however, at the rear door of the last car as I was nearing it came near being too much for me. I discovered the group of my long lost friends, whose forms and faces seemed bursting with poorly suppressed and ill-timed mirth.

As I reached safely the platform, the fire that opened upon me could only be equaled for its merciless effect by the fire in the rear, from which I had providentially fled. I heard jibes, and jokes and jeers. I heard the horse laughter of full chested men, the hysterical efforts of mirth-exhausted women. They had all witnessed my chase after the wrong train; now fearful lest indeed I should overtake it, and then rejoiced at my evident lack of what jockeys call "bottom;" as my speed began to slacken and my chances with the locomotive began to grow "small by degrees and beautifully less." They had witnessed the "blowing up" administered the depot-rooster, the strange procrastination in starting for the right train, until at length it had actually started and I had entered upon a second "stern chase." Then they feared I was left again, as they looked with breathless interest at the unequal contest of legs versus a locomotive. They had witnessed my final triumph, but how gracefully I welcomed, and with what feelings I received their peculiar congratulations I leave my hearers to imagine.

Loch Katrine, Scotland.

This is the glen of which Scott says—

"The lake is passed, and now they gain
A narrow and a broken plain.
Before them Frenzie's rugged jaws,
And here the horse and spearmen pause,
While to explore the dangerous glen
Dive through the pass, the archer-men."

This beautiful little lake scene, as we first saw it the early morning, nestling at the foot of the mountains, was, indeed, lovely beyond description. It was one of those regal autumn days rarely seen in Great Britain, as clear as crystal, with a crisp air, and the lake transparent and placid, reflecting like a fair mirror the deep shadows of the mountains and all the delicate tracery of the foliage, of the trees, and every object, as distinct and clear as a picture. Our stage was filled with passengers, and we all exclaimed with delight when at the turn of the road the lake in its loveliness burst on our view.

I have seen much of the lake scenery of Europe and America, but I do not remember ever to have seen anywhere a more charming bijou of a lake than this.

A tiny little steamer lay dreamily at the dock awaiting our coming to take us through the lake. You feel that this is Scotland's classic ground, made so by the immortal verse of Walter Scott.

Every step you take, every turn of the road and change of the lake and country breathes of his far-famed "Lady of the Lake." It was on this spot that he said:

"Now westward rolls the battle's din,
That deep and doubling pass within.
Minstrel away! the work of fate
Is bearing on; its bugle wait,
Where the rude Trosachs dread defile
Opens on Katrine's lake and isle.
Gray Benevue I soon repostsed,
Loch Katrine lay beneath me rest."

Among the beautiful islands that embellish this lovely lake, the fairest is doubtless "Ellen's Isle," named for the fair maid of the bard's song, who at the close at Stirling [illegible]—

"His chain of gold the king unstrung,
The links o'er Malcolm's neck he flung,
Then gently drew the glittering band
And tied the clasp of Ellen's hand."

The Scotch bard has consecrated some of the most beautiful of his verse to the scenery of the lake itself, and the sail down its quiet waters brings to your mind all the memories of the poem.

Jean Ingelow on Woman Suffrage.

A correspondent of the New York Tribune says:

Miss Jean Ingelow has never given in her allegiance to the woman's movement in any of its forms, but she seems inclined to look more favorably upon it than she did a while ago. I have seen a letter of hers to a friend, in which she says: "It really seems to me that in America it is the men who are drawing woman forth from her obscurity; they are determined that she shall have her turn and see what she can do. Woman authors should be the last to object to this, for they already wield a great share both of power and influence. I am sure I am willing that mankind should do all they can to raise womankind, but not by going down themselves. At present the world is much better served than ruled. It has been served by one sex and ruled by the other. I think the hope of those who put forward woman's rights is that that by taking away all restrictions it will become easy for the strongest, wisest and best of both sexes to come to the front and rule, and that they will do it the others being left to serve. If this is done, the world will have a chance of finding out for the first time which is truly the easiest to rule or to serve. I think it is easier to rule, but that with that position come the great temptations to which the half which rules so commonly yields and, unduly, I think, because being at the head it can do so with impunity."

Indiana is the happy resort of couples anxious for separation a vinculo, but to some other respective Isle of Man is superior. A woman has recently been tried there for attempting to murder her husband by slow poisoning. She had the sufistaction of being acquitted on the ground that the Manx code had made no provision for attempts to commit murder by poison.

James Gordon Bennett is writing his autobiography, telling about the career of the Herald, Bennett's notions of the public men of the last thirty-five years, and explaining some of the peculiarities of his editorial conduct, showing, it is said, that he sought to do good, socially and politically, by adopting a tone of skepticism and mockery.

Business to-day is dull, no seagoing vessels save the Live Yankee being in port. The roads in the country are reported in bad condition, and but little country produce is being received except by the river steamers. The boats yesterday brought down the usual quantity of flour, among the rest about 4,000 sacks of flour, and 1,200 sacks of wheat. Some 200 bbls of mess pork came from the same direction. There is a good supply of wheat now in hand for local mills, while the receipts of flour from points on the river above furnish a large surplus of that article for export as fast as shipping offers.

Retailers and Jobbers are only doing a moderate business, and some of them making complaints of dull times.

THURSDAY MORNING, JANUARY 13, 1870

CITY.

CITY COUNCIL.—Wednesday evening, January 12, 1870, the Common Council of the city of Portland met at the usual hour in the Hose House, Ankeny street. Present—Councilmen Hills, Holbrook, Smith, Cone, Hopkins, Lewis, Moffet and Rinsley. Stark, Cone, Hopkins Lewis, Moffet and Rinsley. Journal of the last meeting read and approved.

PETITIONS, MEMORIALS ETC.

Petition of Jordon & Brown for use of part of First street for building purposes read and prayer of petitioner granted.

A communication from E. C. Paine in reference to a claim which he alleged that he held against the city, was read and referred to the Committee on Claims and Public Property.

Petition of George H. Flanders and others ask for an increase of the salary of the Chief Engineer to $1,000 per annum, read and referred to the Committee on Fire and Water.

REPORTS OF STANDING COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Accounts and Current Expenses reported that they had examined the Quarterly Report of the City Treasurer, and found the same correct. Report approved.

The same Committee reported adversely to raising the salary of the Street Commissioner. Report adopted.

OFFICERS REPORTS.

The Chief Engineer reported that the Engine House of Company No. 1 needed repairs and that certain cisterns were unsafe and naked. That the cistern at the corner of Columbia and Front streets be connected with the water mains.

BILLS AGAINST THE CITY.

Bill for services in the Recorder's Office, amounting to the sum of $54 55, were ordered paid. Also the bills of A. M. Snyder, $28 69; C. H. Ayers, $28 69, Pioneer Wood Company, $7 00; John Wesley $6, Chas. Hopkins $7 00; Oregon Herald, $9 50; Harry I. Pittock [illegible] Harrison Porter appeared and took his seat.

ORDINANCES.

An ordinance making an appropriation of $300 out of the General Fund to supply deficiency in fund for the extension of North Tenth street was read for the second time, rule suspended, ordinance read a third time and passed.

On motion, the Council adjourned.

OREGON WHEAT.—It will be remembered that the floods which occurred about harvest last year in the Willamette valley, destroyed some of the wheat crop and injured much more heretofore reported. It has been but little complaint of any which has been put in the market, and we supposed that the wheat was entirely used for feeding purposes. But it seems that some of it has been sent out of the State as our California exchanges. Some of it as being received in that market. The reputation which Oregon wheat and flour has obtained in the San Francisco market, has hitherto been a most enviable one, and it is certainly to be regretted if the small amount which those floods have damaged should speculate upon that reputation, and cause the shipments of injured grain, shall be the means of that shall lead to its depreciation in value. The Commercial Herald of a late date says:

"Oregon wheat recently at hand proved upon delivery, to have been injured by wet. It is said to have been exposed to the rain soon after harvest, while in the stack, and this injury, it is said, is quite extensive throughout the State. Should this prove to be the case, it will result very considerably to the credit of Oregon flour and wheat, which now and for a year past has been highly regarded by many from our own State."

We make these remarks to put producers and shippers further guard in relation to this matter. It is vital to the interests of the whole State. We should much regret to see the shipment of injured wheat carried to such an extent as materially depreciate the standard of our State as a wheat and flour producing country not only to California but also to the East. The amount, not more than one tenth of last season was at all damaged, and if farmers will convert that into pork instead of exporting they will preserve the reputation of our staple product and lose nothing in dollars thereby.

PORT ITEMS.—The bark A. Heaton and brig Alaska had not gone to sea at our last report from Astoria.

No transaction in real estate has been reported in this city since the 1st inst up to yesterday.

The "King of Pain" man opened out on First street last night and drew quite a crowd, mostly boys.

The goods of Mr. Freidenrich, damaged by the flood last week, were sold at auction yesterday.

Yesterday was a very gusty day, the wind blowing a gale, turning umbrellas wrong side out, driving rain into the mud and scattering "loose" generally. The mercury in the thermometer and the water in the Willamette both went up the former to 48 degrees, the latter a few [illegible]

STREET LAMPS.—We have spoken of the manner in which the oil lamps used for lighting the city are managed, so often that it would seem [illegible] to call further attention to them. In many instances we have heard complaints made that the lamps are not lit early enough; that when they are lit, they afford but little light, the chimneys being so much obstructed with smoke; and that many of the lamps are extinguished by accident or design long before the approach of daylight. There is not city pays enough for lighting the lamps in order to have them properly kept, or if not, the Common Council should make another contract with the lamp-lighter and pay him so that he can afford to do a better job. There are quite a number of lamps that for two or three nights have not received any light.

DEVELOPMENTS.—In cleaning away the rub[illegible] which was in the building where the fire up[illegible] last week, the workmen found a nail keg [illegible] which had been partly filled with shelled oats in the [illegible] was mixed a quantity of lucifer matches. [illegible] was standing in the rear part of the [illegible] and in the oats was a bundle of [illegible] pitch wood. This arrangement was [illegible] good as could be made to give the [illegible] a start, though it may have been altogether [illegible] by accident. We make no comments in regard [illegible] matter, though a great many rumors are in [illegible] as to the direct cause of the fire.

SHADE TREES.—As many property owners are [illegible] setting trees around their lots, we publish [illegible] following provision of an ordinance in force [illegible] thereto. "All shade and ornamental trees that shall hereafter be planted in the streets of the City of Portland, shall be placed at the distance from ten to eleven feet from the line of [illegible] side streets, and from thirteen to fourteen feet from the line of the blocks in the eighty feet streets. The trees may be protected by such [illegible] fences or structures as the Street Commissioner may approve, subject to be removed by order of the Common Council.

NEW LAW.—The ordinance introduced at the meeting before the last of the Common Council, to increase the salary of the Street Commissioner from $1,200, was killed by the report of the Committee on Accounts and Current Expenses, which recommended last night. The committee thought that at this time an inexpedient one to increase the salary as but little work would be required of the officer during the several months next ensuing, and so recommended that "the ordinance do not pass."

BALL.—The Emmet Guard propose giving a ball on the 20th instant one week from this evening, at their Armory. The price of tickets is one dollar, and the proceeds are to be applied to the purchase of military hats and uniforms for the company. The G's generally conduct their parties to a successful issue.

THE FESTIVAL.—The ladies' festival at the Presbyterian church last evening, was well attended and much enjoyed. Everybody seemed pleased with the manner in which matters were conducted. Fair hands presented good cheer in the way of refreshments, and refined sociality ruled the hour.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT.—The United States Circuit Court, Hon. M. P. Deady Judge presiding, met at ten A. M. yesterday. The order setting the case of John B. Lamb et al. vs. Geo. W. Vaughn et al for hearing upon demurrer to cross bill, was vacated. The Court adjourned until 10 A. M. to-day.

COMING.—It is rumored that Mr. Bates and company, who were expected to arrive by the Ajax, are now on route to Portland on the steam ship California.

NO NEWS.—No commercial dispatches from San Francisco were received last night.

LARGE IN NUMBERS.—Those holding tickets and all who desire to enjoy an hour or two in a social dance, should remember the party at Cardinell's Hall this evening for the benefit of Neptune Lodge of Good Templars. Dancing will begin at half past nine.

PETITIONS.—A petition is being circulated in this city asking the United States Senators and Representatives in Congress from Oregon to use their influence to secure the abolition of the franking privilege. It is receiving a number of signatures.

Gen Sickles

WHO OPPOSES HIS CONFIRMATION AS MINISTER TO SPAIN—THE FANNY WHITE AND BARTON KEY AFFAIRS—RECONCILIATION WITH HIS BROKEN HEARTED WIFE.

[From Don Piatt's Letter to the Cincinnati Commercial.]

An effort is being made by some very respectable people to defeat the confirmation of Gen Sickles as our Minister to Spain. The articles attacking his past career and private character in the world are being reprinted and circulated among Senators.

There is something curious in this. The World that is just now a virulently and gaunt is the organ I understand, of the Hon August Belmont, formerly our Minister to the Hague. Gen Dan Sickles was first introduced to good society by the Hon August, then Minister aforesaid, while Daniel was Secretary to our Legation in London. I saw the two together in Paris, and their families were as intimate as if they were one family. August and family were the guests of Daniel in London, and Daniel and wife were the guests of August at the Hague.

Now, as the infamies recorded preceded this intimacy, and consequent introduction to good society and were well known to the Belmonts. An organ the World is estopped, as the lawyers say, from further complaint.

If the Democracy could not only put up with but court and sustain the reckless reprobate from his bad conduct, can we not endure after years of good behavior, wherein he has given unmistakable evidences of an amended life and the highest patriotic impulses.

I commend that conundrum to the afflicted pious and respectable people who are worried over his promotion.

Again I read that one of his infamies was the introduction of the notorious Fanny White to the Solons of Albany. This was bad, but was it worse than making that same Fanny bustor of dispatches to the American Legation at Paris and elsewhere, as the Sage of Oakland did, and as the World must have known when it penned its fulsome eulogy on the departed President, for the fact, published in the Herald was notorious.

Again, the World has tears to shed over the avenger of the polluted marriage bed, in the person of the injured McFarland. Was Sickles any less the avenger? Come, now, let us be consistent.

The affair may be summed up in a few words. While Sickles was with the Dem ocracy he was a wicked man. Since he has lived with us his life has been blameless. So much for association. Now in the language of the old quest l'appetit Mirabeau, as "there is more rejoicing in Heaven over one soul restored to righteousness than over the souls of a thousand just men made perfect," we will sustain Daniel.

Gen Sickles in some respects, is the most remarkable man of his day. He has done things that would have broken down any other public man. And men fall and go under, but no much from the effect of assaults as from their own internal weakness, that forces them to retreat from the front. Gen Sickles has none of this, or passes sung it, crowds it down, and fights out his fight. I saw him enter the House, after the terrible Barton Key affair. All eyes were on him, and no one moved to encourage or sustain the avenger. He was dressed, as usual, with extreme care. He walked slowly and quietly to his seat—the desks had been removed—and no one could see in his handsome face the slightest expression of embarrassment or concern. Shortly after, he arose to speak. A thousand eyes were focused upon him. You might have heard, in the pauses of his clear, ringing voice, a pin drop the House was hushed to such a deathly stillness of listening. He rose to a mastery of the situation, and seemed to tower above ordinary emotion. Senator Downing afterward told me that it was the most dramatic event he ever witnessed in real life.

Sickles assassinated poor Barton Key, and society applauded. I did not applaud, for Sickles had told me that he, and not Barton Key, was to blame, inasmuch as he had exposed his simple, inoffensive little wife to such temptation. But I applauded while the world frowned when Sickles the bravest and divinest act since the days of the Saviour, and took to his home and heart his poor ruined, heart-broken wife and patiently, tenderly watched over and protected her until death relieved them both.

Since then, Gen Sickles' career has been blameless. He offered his life to his country and came from the field mutilated, and if our pious respectable, Republican party does not sustain him, it is unworthy being sustained.

The lumber trade of Michigan is immense. This year, on the eastern shore, there were manufactured 738,541 709 feet of lumber in boards and planks, of shingles, 241 820 000 feet, of lath 114 350,500 feet. Even the manufacture of pickets foots up 410,000 feet. Many myriads of trees will fall this winter before the axe. The last calculation leaves only thirteen years to exhaust the whole pine growth of the Huron region.

The first number of the new Woman's Journal, to be published in Boston was to have appear on New Year's day. It will be quarto in form and a little larger than Harper's Weekly. Mrs. Livermore, of Chicago, will be its editor, assisted by Mrs. Howe and Col. Higginson.

ADVICE IF YOU WISH TO BUY A GOOD SUIT OF CLOTHING, TAKE A FRIEND DEAD SICK AND BURY THEM AT BARMANERS, ODD FELLOW'S TEMPLE, FIRST STREET.

Emmet Guard, Attention!—You will meet at your Armory this evening at 7½ o'clock.

By order of E. CAHALIN, Captain.

Is it worth while to eat food after every meal when indigestion can be immediately relieved and permanently cured by a regular course of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS?
Does it pay to be impelled by debility and languor to stand on your limbs until your brain nerves and muscles can be braced up and the whole system restored to healthy action by a course of HOSTETTER'S BITTERS?
Why approach the dinner table daily with a positive disgust for all that is savory and delicious when a vigorous appetite for even the plainest fare is created by the use of HOSTETTER'S BITTERS?
Can it be possible that any person of this sickly habit will run the risk of remittent fever or bilious fever when he can lose and regain the great sanative organ with HOSTETTER'S BITTERS?
Is it a species of moral insanity for any miner or planter in the Interior or any traveler to carry a journey on the plains to be without the best known antidote to the effects of poisoned air and impure water? HOSTETTER'S BITTERS?
Considering the harassing and depressing natures of the functions of the generative system in a large majority of the adult population of the United States, it is not astonishing that any medicine which should possess the power to restore the sexual organs to a healthy tone, and thereby remove the distressing symptoms which make life a burden to so many, should be in great demand. Such a medicine is HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.
Those suffering from dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, nervousness, debility, rheumatism, kidney complaints, fever and ague, and all diseases originating in a disordered stomach, are invited to give them something more than a passing thought.

That finds song sweeter for her saying
That grass is greener skies more blue,
That all things take a richer hue
Lovers love and these things look to,
Lovers will say them everywhere.

O sweet young love, that in all ages
Hears ever one eternal form
With inspiring youth your oldest pages,
O love ever fresh and warm.
O sweet old story ever young!
Poets have painted, artists sung;
Sure, naught in life is half so sweet
Death cannot make you incomplete
Lovers have said these things before,
Lovers will say them ever more.

An Extraordinary Collection of Oil Paintings.

ECCENTRICITIES OF A WEALTHY BOSTONIAN.

Messrs H. H. Leeds & Miner, of New York, advertises in our columns to-day an extraodinary Executrix sale of Oil Paintings, the most extensive and undoubtedly most valuable collection ever owned in the United States. It belongs to the estate of the late Thomas Thompson, Esq., a man noted for his great wealth and many eccentricities. The New York Herald of Dec. 10th says:

It will be remembered that Mr. Thompson died in New York in the spring of the present year, and the singular bequests made in his will were but another instance of the eccentricities which marked the man through life.

He was a lover of the fine arts from his youth, and at the time of the burning of the Tremont Temple, in Boston, in March, 1852, he lost by the conflagration a fine-art collection which had cost him upwards of $92,000, and—this, be it remembered, was at a time when money was gold and everything was cheap.

This misfortune for a time discouraged him, but he could not overcome his taste and habits. In half a dozen years his new collection was greater than the one he had lost. Occupying an entire building consisting of more than a dozen large rooms, the pictures not only covered the walls, but were positively kept in piles, so that it may probably be truthfully said that no one except the owner ever saw the entire collection, or anything approaching the whole of it.

Some old officers of Boston, presidents of the banks and insurance companies where Mr. Thompson did business, and some artists and literary men, were occasionally invited to pass an afternoon or often an entire day among these treasures, and were unanimous in the expression that they could not begin to look at them all. Portraits of citizens and friends, notable personages, copies of the old masters, and many unembodied originals, the best specimens of the English, French, Italian, Dutch, and in fact every school, have a place in this remarkable collection. There was no artist or picture dealer who did not at times have transactions with this man. The poor artist found him an appreciative and kindly critic, and received a liberal price, his object then was to aid the artist and advance the cause of art. The professional dealer found him a different one entirely. Nothing could ever tempted a cheap or damaged picture for his money, but if it was always known that with him a work of art could be found at some price, and the pay was ready in hand, he was a customer not to be neglected. This vast collection contains many paintings bought for a few hundred dollars which had been previously sold for as many thousands; there are also many for which Mr. Thompson paid several thousand dollars each, and that are probably to-day worth nearly 100 per cent. No collection known is so rich in rare and original pictures.

As some men are lovers of money, this eccentric person was a lover of his pictures, he loved them as his life, and he kept them jealously to himself. Probably not a hundred persons have ever seen them, and an application to him for that purpose was almost invariably met by a positive refusal. Upon occasion of compliance with the request.

Nearly ten years ago, Mr. Thompson had a misunderstanding with the assessors of Boston, and conceiving himself to have been injured by their action, resolved to leave the city of his birth, never again to return to it. This resolve he studiously kept, and although residing for several years in the immediate vicinity, and being a large real estate owner in the city, he never visited it, ceased to communicate with his former friends who resided there, and apparently banished from his thoughts the fact of its existence. From the day he left the city he ceased to buy the pictures. The artist lost a good friend, picture-venders missed their best customer. The entire collection was stowed away, and from that day to this has been securely guarded from every eye until within the past month.

Bierstadt, the artist, who knew Mr. Thompson well, and of whose own paintings there are some dozen or more, expresses an opinion that a similar collection cannot be put together for a half million dollars. No single hall in the country is sufficiently large to exhibit them. Some idea may be conveyed by the fact that when they were removed to their present resting place the actual cost of cartage was $300, and in making arrangements to remove the collection to New York not less than ten freight cars will be required, even if packed close without leaving in the waste of any superfluous room.

Upon the catalogue are found signed pictures of all schools, unquestioned artists whose names have been made famous, and original pictures from whose hands have become rare. There are a large number of copies and originals by the most celebrated artists of the fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, such as Titian, Rembrandt, Rubens, and others. Many portraits of the beauties of American society are buried beneath the weight of superincumbent pictures, and will be brought to the air and sunshine once more.

American artists are largely represented, and many of the early works of men now famous may be found here, some of them giving the early promise of genius now at its zenith. The names of Sully, Inman, Stuart, Durand, Brown, Peale, Hart, Birch, Doughty, and nearly every one who was known ten years ago may be found largely represented on the catalogue. The very last picture added to the collection was the "Sleeping Beauty," by Wright of Keene. It was purchased by Mr. Thompson before it was finished for the sum of $3,000, the artist retaining the right of exhibition for a certain time.

Iowa comes to the close of its fiscal term of two years in a most healthy condition as regards finances. It has a debt of only $300,000, none of which is due until 1891, and none of which can be purchased at par. There is in the State Treasury a sum of $303,198 95; and the liabilities outside of the funded debt are too insignificant to be mentioned, amounting to considerably less than $50,000. The resources of the State, immediately available, mount to upwards of two million dollars, and the entire amount estimated to be necessary to pay the expenses of the State Government for the next two years, including extraordinary and unknown appropriations, is only $1,108,000. During the last two years the taxable property of the State has increased by the sum of thirty-eight million dollars, making the State taxation, which was scarcely felt before, still lighter.

The Lansing Republican has the following choice items: "A widow married a few months ago. Upon eight or ten weeks' trial she informed her husband he didn't suit, and he left unceremoniously, as a hired hand not longer wanted. More lately another left upon a like signification from his better half, only he snivelled at the loss of a situation. And still more recently another said he would leave if his wife would raise him seven dollars, and thereupon she mortgaged her cookstove for the money. He had to sign the mortgage with her to make it valid. She then handed him the money and he left. These departures are improvements to North Lansing."

There is a good deal of sound financiering in the following from the Gaylesburg Free Press. "Pay up. If you owe one but a single dollar, go and pay him; when there is so little money we ought to keep it moving around lively. Jim owed us, and we owed Bill, and Bill owed Jim. Jim got mad because we made him pay last week one morning, but we paid Bill, and Bill paid Jim, and Jim went to bed that night happy as a clam, with just as much money as he had in the morning, and three men out of debt."

The markets present no unusual features, unless we may note a decline in receipts of wheat and flour from the large amount coming to hand on Monday and Tuesday. This lull in dust is but temporary, and may be due to the unusually low stage of water in the Willamette, which is not likely to continue many days. There were receipts of some 500 sacks of oats which are destined for local use. A considerable quantity of meats, mostly meat pork in barrels and dressed hogs, came to hand. This article the present season has been produced in greater amount and marketed in better condition than ever before in Oregon. The low price of wheat and the large percentage of that cereal spoiled for milling purposes by the rains in harvest time, have been the principal occasion of the more extensive development of the resources of the country in the pork producing business than would otherwise have occurred. There is but little doubt that the margin of profit to the farmer who converts his wheat into pork is fully as great as to him who markets the cereal of the figures ruling this winter.

Butter and eggs are more abundant, and sales are dull at the quotations below. Fruit is still in good supply, and the exceedingly low rates in California, by discouraging shipments, precludes the idea of an advance. Family groceries and dry goods remain unchanged.

HIRAM SMITH'S

Ophthalmic Panacea!

IS WITHOUT DOUBT THE MOST WONDERFUL EYE HEALER that has yet been discovered.

It CURES the most stubborn and hopeless cases of CHRONIC INFLAMMATIONS, GRANULATED LIDS, FILMS, &c., as has been sufficiently demonstrated during the few months in which it has been brought into public notice. The proprietor is joyfully convinced of its INFALLIBILITY (and he WARRANTS A CURE OR REFUNDS THE MONEY. It can do the eyes no harm, and a trial of it is therefore without injury or expense if the patient is in not other respects.

It has cured cases of FIVE, SIX, NINE, FIFTEEN, and even EIGHTEEN YEARS standing in Harrisburg, Linn county, Oregon, and its vicinity, to which the following persons will bear witness:

R. B. MOORE, NATHANIEL BELL,
A. L. WALLACE, C. B. WARD,
Mrs. MONTGOMERY, JOHN M HOLLOWAY,
W. D. PORTER, ROBT RAMSEY,

And others in that vicinity.

Persons afflicted with the distressing scourge of diseased eyes are advised to give this Ophthalmic Panacea or Hiram's Eye Salve a fair trial as the NO CURE, NO PAY and NO HUMBUG plan.

Prepared by SMITH & WAGIN, Harrisburg, Oregon.
